HAL is a multi-disciplinary open access archive for the deposit and dissemination of scientific research documents, whether they are published or not. The documents may come from teaching and research institutions in France or abroad, or from public or private research centers.

L'archive ouverte pluridisciplinaire HAL, est destinée au dépôt et à la diffusion de documents scientifiques de niveau recherche, publiés ou non, émanant des établissements d'enseignement et de recherche français ou étrangers, des laboratoires publics ou privés.

Abstract Peer review is an essential component of scientific publishing, ensuring that our science is well communicated, accurately documented, appropriately placed in the context of prior work, and effectively archived for future usage, all within a timeframe that ensures the highest possible impact. The 200 papers published in Tectonics in 2019 benefitted from the careful scrutiny and constructive criticism drawn from the expertise of 728 reviewers, who provided a total of 1,082 reviews. These papers have helped to elucidate the evolution, structure, and deformation of Earth's lithosphere across a range of geologic to recent timescales. To all of the members of our community who have volunteered their time and efforts toward this collective goal, we thank you for helping Tectonics produce the high quality output that has helped us maintain a prominent position in scientific publishing for years, and for the spirit of teamwork that makes the peer review process an asset in our community.

Referees for 2019

Individuals in italics provided three or more reviews for Tectonics during the year.
